

Helping Students Write Anything Quickly and Fluently

Notre Dame Seishin University, Japan

Teaching context

Location: University English writing classes in Japan

Class size: 15 to 20 students

Class time: 50 minutes, once a week

Students: Second-year students majoring in English who may expect to write a senior thesis in English in their senior year

Problem

* When + working in English is a problem for students in English classes in Japan. The problem is that students often struggle to write quickly and fluently in English. This is a common problem for students in English classes in Japan. The problem is that students often struggle to write quickly and fluently in English. This is a common problem for students in English classes in Japan.

Appendix

Topics, or Speech * riting that have wor%e# well in my classes:

1- How do you feel about being at school?

- Why do you like to travel or why do you not like to travel?

2- What do you think about the weather in Spring;      <0

3- What do you think about Japanese food;      <0

5-